

24 octobre 2024 – Meet Prakash Krishnan, new Coordinator, Public Programs and Education at the Ellen!

Prakash is an artist-researcher and cultural worker whose focus is on accessibility, contemporary art, and education. He has published widely on art, feminist archives, South Asian visual culture, and 2SLGBTQ+ organizing in the form of reviews, interviews, zines, essays, and journal articles. Prakash's previous roles include research associate and coordinator at Access in the Making Lab, educator at the PHI Foundation for Contemporary Art, and manager of cultural mediation at Centre CLARK. He holds a MA in Media Studies from Concordia University.

The hiring committee determined that Prakash's unique aptitude for bridging artistic and academic contexts, while engaging critically with the pressing issues of our time, is what makes him perfectly suited to a university gallery like the Leonard & Bina Ellen.

For Pip Day, Director at the Gallery, it is "Prakash's extraordinary capacity to assemble learning communities through pedagogical practices anchored in curiosity, accessibility, and reciprocity that will be invaluable to the gallery and its communities, new and old."

We are thrilled to welcome Prakash to the team!
